

Elmira College
Center for Mark Twain Studies at Quarry Farm
Presents

Four Spring Events

Wednesday, April 3, 1991
8:00 p.m. at Quarry Farm

Darryl Baskin, Center Director and Professor of American Studies, will speak on "Boss Morgan: Mark Twain, His Connecticut Yankee, and American Political Culture." Professor Baskin is the author of books, articles, and reviews in the field of American politics and political thought. He is general editor of Quarry Farm Papers and other Center publications.

Wednesday, April 17, 1991
8:00 p.m. at Quarry Farm

M. Thomas Inge, Blackwell Professor of the Humanities at Randolph-Macon College, will give an illustrated talk on "Mark Twain and Comic Art" under the auspices of the Center's Distinguished Academic Visitors program. In addition to examining illustrated renditions of Twain's works, the talk will also consider Mark Twain as a favorite subject of caricaturists. A leading authority on American popular culture who has published widely in his field, Professor Inge has consulted and lectured abroad in eighteen countries as both a Senior Fulbright Lecturer and a Resident Scholar of the United States Information Agency.

Wednesday, May 15, 1991
8:00 p.m. at Quarry Farm

Ronald Hoodak of the Board of Cooperative Educational Services will introduce a premiere showing of his video production of "Mark Twain and Quarry Farm." A teacher in the B.O.C.E. program for specially gifted and talented students who has brought many school groups to the Farm, Mr. Hoodak will comment on the production of the video and the value of the Center's school program to his students.

Wednesday, May 29, 1991
8:00 p.m. at Quarry Farm

James D. Wilson, Professor of English at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, will speak on "Providence Gone Awry: Religion in Mark Twain's Later Career" under the auspices of the Center's Distinguished Academic Visitors program. The author of books, articles, and reviews in the field of Mark Twain studies, Professor Wilson is the Executive Coordinator of the Mark Twain Circle of America and co-editor of the forthcoming Mark Twain Encyclopedia.

Quarry Farm is located on Crane Road which can be reached from East Avenue or Lattabrook Road.

To reserve your seat, call: 734-3911 extension 239.

